JOHNNY WONDER

Q: "WHAT MAKES A FIRE SMOKE?"

A: The smoke that rises from a chimney or a bonfire is made chiefly of gases that are produced when the fuel burns. Most of the gases in wood smoke are water vapor and carbon dioxide. These invisible gases rise, and drift away with the air. Usually smoke has in it, too, tiny specks of carbon. They are partially burned bits of the fuel that is burning. The carbon, called soot, colors the smoke gray or almost black. Some of the soot sticks to the walls of the chimney, blackening it. In many cities, the soot from burning fuels sometimes mixes with fog, forming "smog."

You can win a World Almanac if your question is selected. Send your name and address to JOHNNY WONDER, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1898, Santa Cruz, CA 95061.
